

The Eva B. Dykes Library, Oakwood College, Huntsville, Alabama, is named for the first black woman to qualify for the Doctorate Degree and the first black woman to obtain the degree in English. This building contains reading space, classroom facilities, an audio visual classroom, the Archives and Archiveist office, and the museum, which houses artifacts and memorabilia pertaining to black Seventh-Day Adventist history.

Color by Hub Gardner

PLACE
STAMP
HERE

Alabama Beautiful
POST CARD
address