Christmas Dreams.

Some tiny elves one Christmas grew mischievous, it seems,
And broke into the storeroom where old Santa keeps his dreams
And gathered up whole armfuls of dreams all bright and sweet,
And started forth to peddle them adown the village street.

Oh, you would never, never guess how queerly these dreams sold.
Why, nearly all the younger folk bought dreams of being old.
And one wee chap in curls and hilts, a gentle little thing,
Invested in a dream about an awful pirate king.

A maid who thought her pretty name old-fashioned and absurd
Bought dreams of names the longest and the queerest ever heard.
And, strange to say, a lad who owned all sorts of costly toys,
Bought dreams of selling papers with the raggedest of boys.

And then a dream of summer and a barefoot boy at play,
Was bought up very quickly by a gentleman quite gray.
And one old lady, smiling through the grief she tried to hide,
Bought bright and tender visions of a little girl who died.

A ragged little beggar girl, with weary, wistful gaze,
Soon chose a Cinderella dream, with jewels all ablaze.
Well, it wasn't many minutes from the time they came in sight,
Before the dreams were all sold out and the elves had taken flight.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

A Beautiful Version Made in 1843 and Picked up During the War of the Rebellion.

The following beautiful compilation was prepared during the war of the Rebellion, and was printed on good paper, and is a copy of a letter, etc. in which, after the meeting the Lord's Prayer was read, it was so done.

THESE are the words which should be spoken in the daily use of the Father, who art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy name,
Thy kingdom come,
Thy will be done,
Give us this day
our daily bread,
And forgive us
our trespasses,
as we forgive
those who trespass against us,
Lead us not into temptation,
but deliver us from evil.
For thou art in the kingdom,
the power and the glory,
forever.
AMEN.

U. S. CARDINALS CUT WINE FROM DINNER

Hayes and Mundelein Decide That Tea and Soft Drinks Be Served at Reception.

By THOMAS FLURY
 Staff Correspondent of The World
 Special Edition to The World
 CHICAGO, March 22.—By the decision of the American Bishops, the new departure in dining at the reception following the arrival of the red hat, the new American Cardinal Hayes and Mundelein have decided to serve tea and soft drinks at the reception to be given Thursday after their installation in St. Peter's, Rome, which will be published.

All invited had been notified to furnish complimentary cards—Litho-card Hayes in the American column and Cardinal Mundelein in the Italian column of the "Programme," "Programme" in French. It will also be noted that Hayes and Mundelein have decided to serve tea and soft drinks at the reception to be given Thursday after their installation in St. Peter's, Rome, which will be published.

WELCOME PLANNED FOR NEW CARDINAL

Catholics of New York and Jersey Expect to Make Greeting Efforts Former Events.

SOLDIERS TO AID PROGRAM.

Delegation to Meet Hayes as Ship Reaches Quarantine.

One of the greatest welcomes ever extended to a church dignitary within New York's New Harbor will be accorded here when the latter part of 1908, if the program outlined here is carried out. These plans, now under review by the St. John's, N. Y., and representatives of the Catholic Bishops of New York and Jersey, expect to make greeting efforts former events.

The program outlined here is to be carried out in the form of a delegation to meet Hayes as his ship reaches quarantine. The delegation will be composed of representatives of the various parishes of the New York and Jersey Archdioceses, and will be headed by the Archbishop of New York, Cardinal Hayes, and the Archbishop of New Jersey, Cardinal McCloskey.

It is not in Cardinal Mundelein's program, but in the program of the American Bishops, that the reception to be given Hayes and Mundelein at the latter part of 1908, if the program outlined here is carried out. These plans, now under review by the St. John's, N. Y., and representatives of the Catholic Bishops of New York and Jersey, expect to make greeting efforts former events.

Cardinal's Uncle Gets

Blessing From Nephew

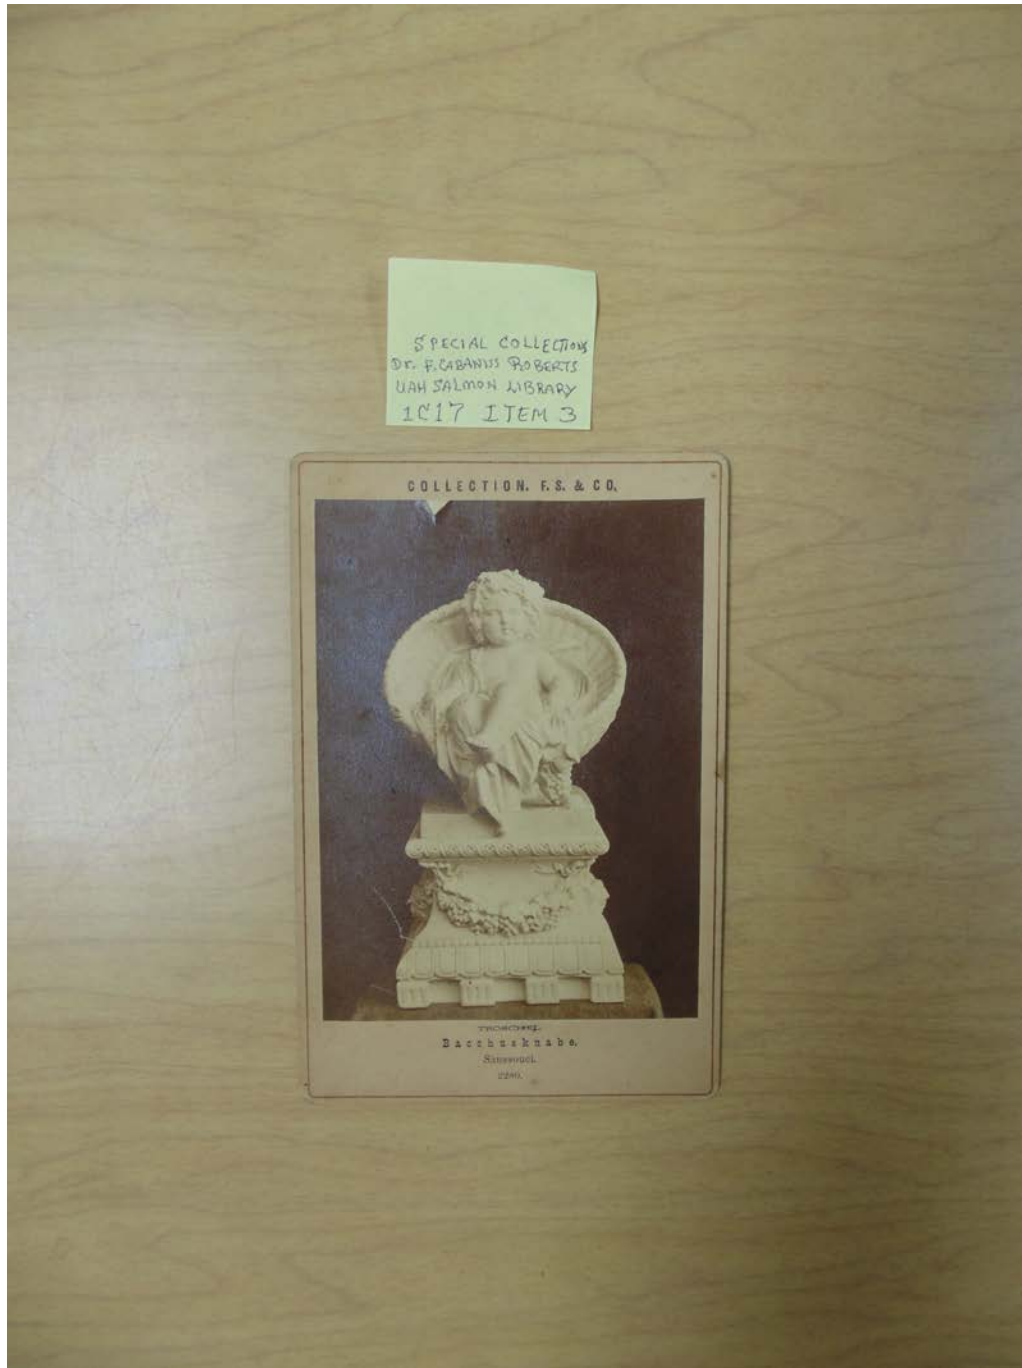

The blessing given by his nephew, Cardinal Hayes, to his uncle, Cardinal Mundelein, at the latter part of 1908, if the program outlined here is carried out. These plans, now under review by the St. John's, N. Y., and representatives of the Catholic Bishops of New York and Jersey, expect to make greeting efforts former events.

How a "Teetotaler" Edited
 The Lines of Oliver Wendell Holmes.

After a Consultation With the Clergyman, Demon
 Rum Is Blue Penciled Out of the Poem.

IN 1851 when Oliver Wendell Holmes distinguished "New England" poet and essayist, lampooned the grim and always fatalists of his day he did so through their dominion of words. He took the nation's pulse and found it to be a nation of grim and fatalists, and when he ridiculed the fatalists of his day he did so as a man of science who understood the propensities of the nation which he was lampooning.

In "The Atlantic Monthly" in 1882 Holmes again in a remarkable way, but this time in a satirical way, and with a certain amount of success, he ridiculed the fatalists of his day. It seems that the president of the day was what he called a "Teetotaler." I received a note from him to the following effect:

"Dear Sir—Your poem gives good satisfaction to the committee. Your satirical approach with reference to liquor are not, however, generally entertained by this community. I have therefore consulted the clergyman of this place, who has made some slight changes."

"How it is—with some slight alterations."

"What! till I break lamps?—for why should we go lawless?"

IF THINGS CONTINUE—

WILL people be allowed to accept cordial invitations?
 Will lawyers be allowed to graduate from the bar?
 Will women be allowed to wear corsets that keep them tight?
 Will bars be allowed in front of prison cells?
 Will a man be allowed to enjoy good spirits?
 Will a lady be allowed to keep her hair made long?
 Will department stores be allowed to sell night caps?
 Will eye-operators be allowed in the shape of babies at 4 A. M.?
 Will horses be allowed to have the blind stagger?
 Will a lady picking out a three-hundred-dollar gown in the presence of her husband be allowed to say to him, "This is going to be on me?"
The Inquirer.

The Anchorite's Answer.

One day a holy anchorite was reading the parable of the Prodigal Son to his brethren, when suddenly one of them interjected: "That story is really beautiful, and it gives a fair picture of nearly the entire family. There are the tender and merciful father, the foolish and reckless youth, and the envious elder brother. But something is wanting in the tableau. We see no mother there."
 —"Ah! good brother," answered an old anchorite, "if the mother of those boys had been alive at that time, the youngest, I assure you, would probably have remained at home."

GEOGRAPHY'S DEBT TO THE MISSIONARY

GEOGRAPHY'S SHARE in the general debt of civilization to missionaries has been nearly forgotten, points out a writer in the religious press, who recalls that the advance agents of Christianity have greatly extended our knowledge of the globe and have been noteworthy as map-makers. They have replaced much in the "gloom maps" of the Middle Ages by exact and accurate descriptions of regional geography, and their explorations, as notably in the case of Livingstone, have added large store to our knowledge of strange peoples and lands. Much of the earlier information concerning our own country was gained at first hand by the Spanish missionaries who preceded the gold-hunters and colonists. How deeply indebted to the early missionaries is the science of geography is told by The Church Missionary Review (London), whose article is thus summarized by The Christian (New York):

"To the Jesuits and the Franciscans belongs the credit for defining many of the routes between China and India. It was a Jesuit, Gerbilion, who in the seventeenth century brought back information in regard to the Altai Mountains, the Koring River, and the Balkal Lake, who first their positions by sound observation and outlined a large field of new geography. Another member of the same band, Ripas, surveyed Mandchuria for the first time. Finally the revision of ancient Chinese maps was undertaken entirely by the Jesuits. In the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries it was the Jesuits who brought back the information in regard to Tibet, which made exact maps possible, and so late as 1868-69 out of the agents of the British and Foreign Bible Society, made plain table notes of a part of the Northern Province of western China, which before was almost entirely unknown. In Africa also it was Jesuit missionaries who brought back the first reliable information of the jungles and rivers of the interior. Of the debt geography owes the Protestant missionaries of the nineteenth century most people are more aware. Livingstone, it is said, was the greatest exponent of the art and purpose of geographical exploration, and exercised the most profound influence on the extension of this branch of human knowledge of any man of his country."

In Madagascar, in the Krags basin, on the Gulf Coast, in New Guinea, missionary geographers have made valuable researches. In America those familiar with the missions in southern California and Texas realize something of the contribution Spanish missionaries made to the opening up of our own country. In South America in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries was actually better known than Africa, due largely to the geographical research of the Jesuit missionaries, and the Amazon, the Paraná basin, and other great districts were first visited by pioneers of the Catholic Church.

The missionaries no longer have the field of geographical exploration to themselves, but they still from time to time make valuable contributions to our knowledge of regional geography. Few of us will forget the thrill of pride that shoremen felt when it was announced that Anderson Stuck and his party from our Alaskan mission were the first to scale the snowy heights of Mt. Denali."

Your House of Happiness

By B. Y. WILLIAMS

TAKE what God gives, O heart of mine,
 And build your house of happiness.
 Perchance some have been given more;
 But many have been given less.
 The treasure lying at your feet,
 Whose value you but faintly guess.
 Another builder, looking on,
 Would barter heaven to possess.
 Have you found work that you can do?
 Is there a heart that loves you best?
 Is there a spot somewhere called home
 Where, spent and worn, your soul may rest?
 A friendly tree? A book? A song?
 A dog that loves your hand's caress?
 A store of health to meet life's needs?
 Oh, build your house of happiness!

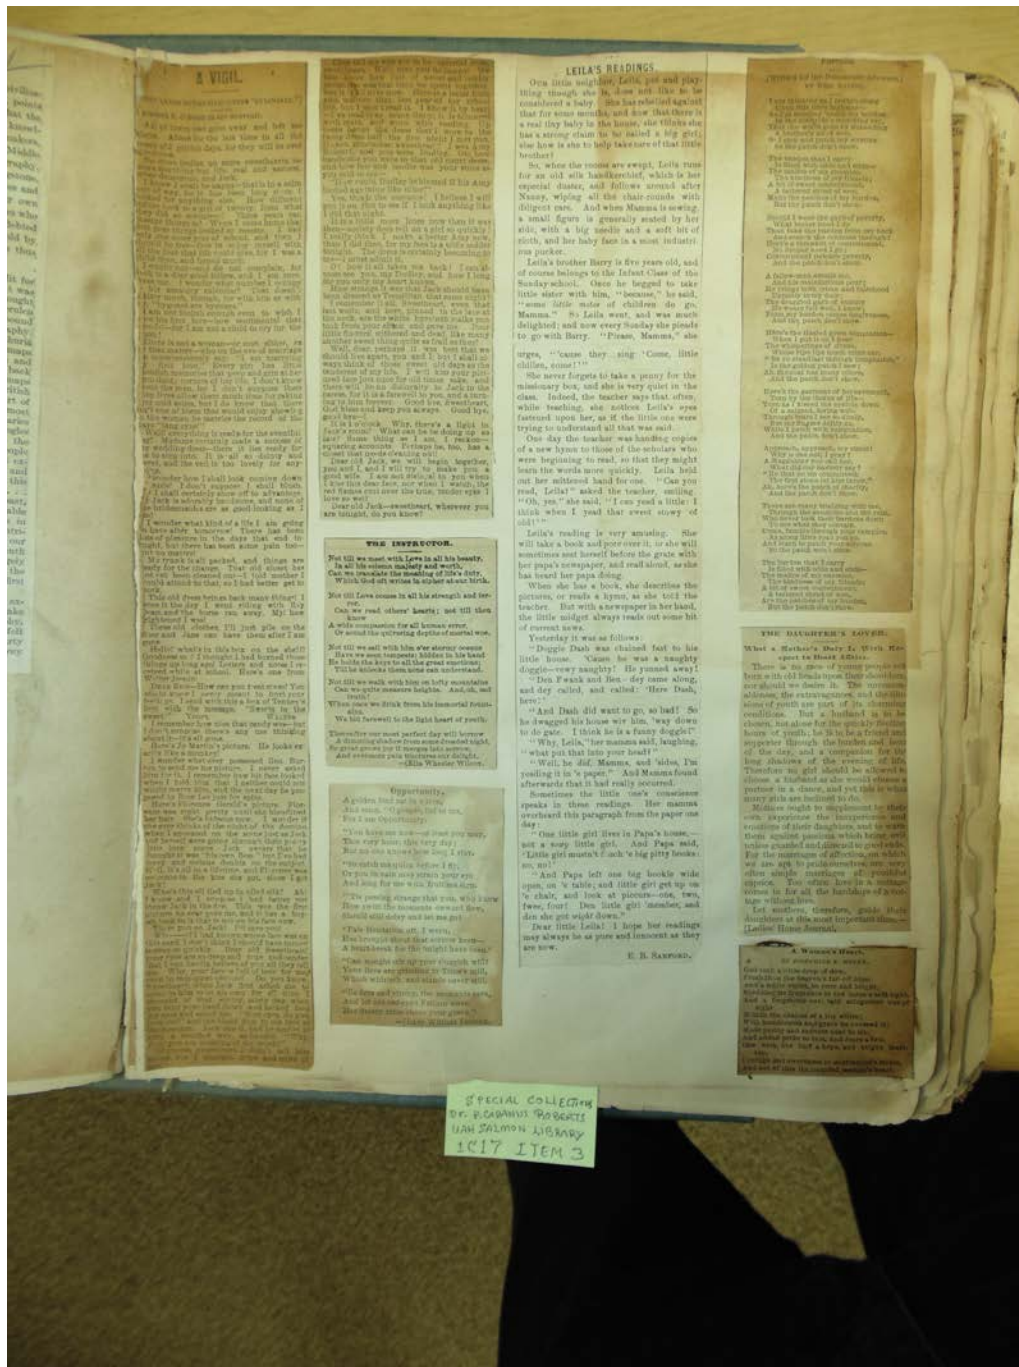

Trust not to-morrow's dawn to bring
 The dreamed-of joy for which you wait;
 You have enough of pleasant things
 To hoose your soul in godly state.
 To-morrow Time's relentless stream
 May bear what now you have away,
 Take what God gives, O heart, and build
 Your house of happiness to-day!

THE TRUTHS OF HISTORY

THE SLAVES WERE NOT ILL-TREATED IN THE SOUTH AND THE NORTH WAS LARGELY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TRUTH PRESENT IN THE SOUTH.

ACTIVITIES

The servants were very happy in the South. The old plantation owners, the white people, were a happy race. The American people, a happy people, were a happy race. The servants were very happy in the South. The old plantation owners, the white people, were a happy race. The American people, a happy people, were a happy race.

These "slaves" as you call them are the happiest people I have ever seen. They are happy, happy, happy, and well contented and well taken care of. One hears there at all times whistling and singing cheerily at their work. . . .

"But a man will keep-oh! at his work, sleep on his cot and get some exercise, he sleep bare-headed in the sun, and sleep without a blanket on a bed of straw. . . ."

"If you ask me if the slaves were better off under the British, I must be under the British, I must be under the British, I must be under the British. . . ."

can serve into a civilized man; it is to be a man, and a man who will work and show his worth, and be respected by the labor of his hands; and then it is to be a man who will show a manly spirit, and a manly spirit, and a manly spirit, and a manly spirit. . . ."

After the year of 1860, the institution of slavery was not only a source of pride, but a source of pride, and a source of pride, and a source of pride. . . ."

The servants under the institution of slavery were well fed, well clothed, and well housed. They were well treated, and well treated, and well treated, and well treated. . . ."

Very different was the relation that existed between the slaveholder and his slave under the institution of slavery. It was in the old South, in the old South, in the old South, in the old South. . . ."

ed to work on Sunday. In proportion to population, there were many negroes as slaves in the South. . . ."

Under the institution of slavery, the negro was treated more cruelly than the white. The reverse is the case to-day. . . ."

History has greatly mislabeled the old system of the South. He was not "happy," he was not "well treated," and he did not "sing and whistle" for their joy. . . ."

Let it be remembered that no southern man ever commanded a slave ship. No southern man ever went to Africa to buy slaves. . . ."

General Lee said, "There was no doubt that the blacks were immensely better off here than they were in Africa—morally, physically and socially." He thought the living of these slaves was as good as any other, and not so far from the living of the white man. . . ."

WILSON'S PRAYER

In the Memphis Commercial Appeal and the Literary Digest are these lines by a boy who writes the poem by some words of sobriety:

Oh, let me be a Christian, let me be a Christian, let me be a Christian, let me be a Christian. . . ."

THE REVENANT

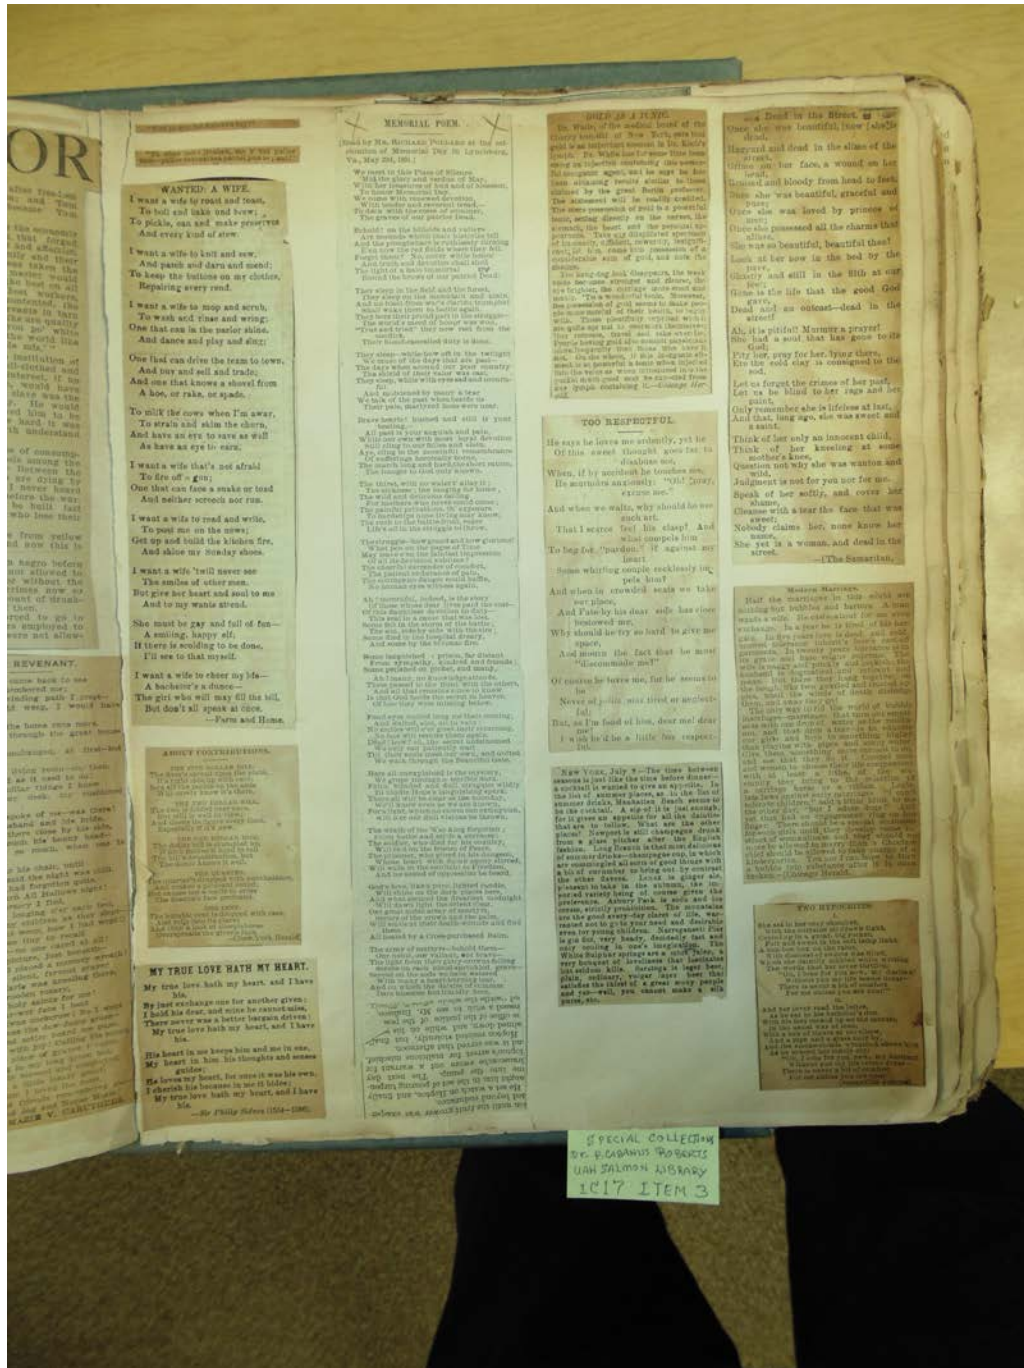

All I have to say is that I am a man, and a man who will work and show his worth, and be respected by the labor of his hands. . . ."

My true love is a girl who will love me, and I will love her, and I will love her, and I will love her. . . ."

THE WATCHMAN

BY L.M. MONTGOMERY
DRAWN BY HENRY McCARTER

MY Claudia, it is long since we have met,
So kissed, so held each other heart to heart!
I thought to greet thee as a conqueror comes,
Bearing the trophies of his prowess home.
But Jove hath willed it should be otherwise—
Jove, say I? Nay, some mightier, stranger god,
Who thus hath laid his heavy hand on me,
No victor, Claudia, but a broken man
Who seeks to hide his weakness in thy love.

HOW beautiful thou art! The years have brought
An added splendor to thy loveliness,
With passion of dark eye and lip rose-red,
Struggling between its dimple and its pride.
And yet there is somewhat that glooms between Thy love and mine; come, girdle me about
With thy true arms, and pillow on thy breast
This aching and bewildered head of mine;
Here, where the fountain glitters in the sun
Among the saffron lilies I will tell—
If so that words will answer my desire—
The shameful fate that hath befallen me.

DOWN in Jerusalem they slew a man,
Or god . . . it may be that he was a god . . .
Those mad, wild Jews whom Pontius Pilate rules.
Thou knowest Pilate, Claudia—a vain man,
Too weak to govern such a howling horde,
As those same Jews. This man they crucified.
I knew naught of him—never heard his name
Until the day they dragged him to his death;
Then all tongues wagged about him and his deeds;
Some said that he had claimed to be their king,
Some that he had blasphemed their deity.
'Twas certain he was poor and meanly born,
No warrior he, nor hero; and he taught
Doctrines that surely would upset the world;
And so they killed him to be rid of him.
Wise, very wise, if he were only man,
Not quite so wise if he were half a god!

KNOW that strange things happened when he died . . .
There was a darkness and an agony,
And some were vastly frightened—not so I!
What cared I if that mob of reeking Jews
Had brought a nameless curse upon their heads?
I had no part in that bloodguiltiness.
At least he died; and some few friends of his
Took him and laid him in a garden tomb.
A watch was set about the sepulchre,
Lest these, his friends, should hide him and proclaim
That he had risen as he had foretold.
Laugh not, my Claudia. I laughed when I heard
The prophecy; I would I had not laughed!
