I have just been called into a very costly glass door, with his head and my hands. He denied having written what ~~Mr. Spadden~~ said, which letter to me that had been written about me, and then told about other people who said as he expressed it, also into it.

I was first appointed by Mr. Spadden this County being then in his hands. Your friend Judge McDowell is his successor having been appointed last spring at the time of Mr. Spadden's death. Jackson County, which is just west of and adjoining Madison County is now in the hands of the division.

I can see no papers, collections, or any difference, should such attacks be removed, being certainly all the lies that are told against me, and reaching his own conclusion upon the testimony alone of men whom I can impeach and whom are full of animosity and malice against me, unless it be that we have a Madison County taken out of his division, and put either into Chancellor Beards or Mr. McDowell's.

I am certain if my name were from this County, who will interfere with

Dear Sir,

Your kind letter of the 29th inst. has been received by me through the hands of your messenger, and I am glad to hear that you are well, as it came at a time when I needed some consolation. I have been very busy with my duties as a judge, and I have not had time to write you more fully. I have, however, taken some steps to support the bill which you have introduced, and I have also taken an active part in this matter, and what is mostly needed is that it should be properly started. I would like to see you in person, and suggest that you should do so, and suggest that you should do so, and suggest that you should do so.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Your letter of the 17th Nov just received and read this morning.
I was surprised to find that it had lain in the Register office for the past few days. You misunderstood my last letter. I desire to pay up all the dues on my Mathews stock, and all the payments due of interest due monthly, monthly dues and may be due upon such unpaid pay-have been made at the times when due.

I have paid as I promised
