ing equipment send considerably fewer instructions, diagrams, and suggestions than you get with a 50-cent box kite kit.

The results of this study are shown in the accompanying photo. Seed are dumped on the floor and scooped into a double elevator (A. T. Ferrell Co. 7 x 4½-inch cups 38 feet high), at Point 1 they are elevated to hopper at Point 2 and augered into a bin (2000-lb. capacity) above Point 3 which is a Super 228-D Scalper (A. T. Ferrell). This scalper was redesigned as a three-screen scalper-cleaner. We find that a thorough scalping is necessary to insure uniformly good results from the various cleaning operations to follow. From the scalper seed move through Point 4 which is a 2968-D six-screen Ferrell cleaner. From this cleaner seed are dropped into the backside of the other leg of the elevator at Point 5 and are elevated back to a bin at the roof. The seed then pass through disc separators at Points 6 and 7. These disc separators, made by the Hart-Carter Co., are designed so that the top separator lifts the fescue and smaller seed from the material being cleaned, dropping it into the bottom machine where all seed shorter than fescue are removed and the clean seed dropped into bin at Point 8. They are then bagged at Point 9 which is a bagging scale manufactured by Fairbanks-Morse and Co.

Never Touched

The seed are moved through all the operations from the time they are scooped into the elevator on the ground floor successively through all of the above machines without being touched or re-handled until they are bagged on the main floor. This equipment is operated by a two-man crew.

Some things we learned by "having our noses rubbed in it." For instance, we had to extend the elevators six feet into the floor so that seed could be scooped into the elevator without lifting and eight feet above the roof so seed would flow by gravity. Another thing—bins and storage capacity between cleaners must be large or uniformly good results will not be obtained.

We experimented with many different sacking platforms for trash spouts before we came up with a wooden stand with eccentrically-mounted casters (see photo). This made it easy to sack, store, or dispose of trash.

Real Estate

"With a variety of skills and development capabilities, our Real Estate Department is able to provide virtually all of the services an investor might need."

G.W. Jones & Sons' real estate department is structured to assist and advise clients in every phase of property investment, development, and valuation. Since its formation in 1918 under the leadership of Edwin W. Jones, the department has successfully ventured into almost every type of real estate activity.

Today the department is under the supervision of Executive Vice President Peter L. Lowe, M.A.L. In 1969, Mr. Lowe was one of the first in North Alabama to be awarded the M.A.L. designation. Under the leadership of Mr. Lowe and John D. Blue, R.M., the firm has developed a variety of real estate projects including apartment complexes, office parks and subdivisions. We have acted as our own contractor, having an unlimited state contractor's license, on some of these developments where the construction costs have been as high as several million dollars.
