the Tennessee River Valley vulnerable to attack.

Some Huntsville citizens believed that Huntsville would be attacked since <sup>it was the site of</sup> the Eastern Division Headquarters of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad were located in Huntsville as well as its repair shops. Others thought that Huntsville would be bypassed since Corinth, <sup>MS</sup> and Chattanooga, Tennessee were more important targets. After the Confederates were unsuccessful in their attempt to defeat the Union Forces at Shiloh Meeting House near Pittsburg landing on April 6, 1862 and had to retreat <sup>to Corinth</sup>, most of Huntsville's citizens became very much concerned about their safety.
