Of later years, the ambition of the family manifests itself in the effort to obtain a better and higher education for the youthful members, few being satisfied with anything short of a degree or two in College. (See our Collge President.)

A number of our people have become teachers. The writer taught five or six terms of school, all being in Madison County, excepting the last taught near Caldwell, Texas, 1891-1892, winter session.

Possibly, in furnishing some good teachers, which we have given the country, we have lost the service and advice of the same number of good farmers and mechanics.

A few of our people have gone into the professions, as appears later herein. Besides the teachers mentioned, there are a few doctors, nurses, dietitians and lawyers.

By much hard work, unity of purpose and action in the various families, supported in all things and encouraged by the fine women, wives of these industrious ancestors, much advancement has resulted from the original pioneers. We still advance. Magnificent women they have always been and still are as chosen by our men; wives whose devotion, unselfish industry and tireless help have been the greatest factors in the advance of their husbands and children, forward, always forward!!

Here, also may I speak a few words of appreciation and praise for those wives and mothers. Day after day, in sickness and in health, they have worked alongside of their husbands and created the home-life from which all these fine sons and daughters came. They were real homes from which they sent out real men and women of courage and industry to carry on.

Edwin Arnold in his Boston Dialogue says this to the Boston Girl:

"She-mercy everywhere, she-pitying
In helpless season!
You Boston girls seem up to everything;
Tell me the reason!"

6

"Why certainly," she smiled, "don't poets know
Better than others?
God can't be always everywhere and, so,
Invented Mothers."

At our home we all address my wife as Mother. Last week I walked in home where my two daughters were in sight and so of course I said, "Where's Mother?" This question we hear not only in the homes, on the farm, but everywhere there is a home, a mother, this is the predominant question: "Where's Mother?" Some unknown author has seen the frequency of this question in writing and has heard it from all ages and all classes and all parts of the family: "Where's Mother?" She has written the sweet lines quoted below:

Bursting in from school or play,
This is what the children say!
Trooping, crowding, big and small,
On the threshold, in the hall—
Joining in the constant cry,
Ever as the days go by,
"Where's mother?"

Burdened with a lonely task,
One day we may vainly ask
For the comfort of her face,
For the rest of her embraces;
Let us love her while we may,
Well for us that we can say,
"Where's Mother?"

Mother with untiring hands
At the post of duty stands,
Patient, seeking not her own,
Anxious for the good alone
Of the children as they cry,
Ever as the days go by,
"Where's mother?"

EARLIEST HISTORY OF ESSLINGERS (ESLINGERS)
IN AMERICA

In endeavoring to locate the very early ancestors of the Esslingers who finally settled in eastern Tennessee and northern Alabama, we are naturally most anxious to learn of any very early settlers by that name in this country who can properly be regarded as our early ancestors. Our search has ascertained the following information, which we believe locates the earliest ancestry for these Esslingers.

On September 19, 1749, the good ship "Patience" an English ship whose master was Captain Hugh Steel landed in Philadelphia. In the Captain's list of the passengers on this ship is the name of Christian Esslinger and he is listed as having come from "Wirttemberg."

On August 11, 1750, the good ship "Patience" under Captain Hugh Steel landed again at Philadelphia and on the ship's list for this landing appears the entry of the name of Hans Jerg (John George) Esslinger, also listed as having come from "Wirttemberg."

(Photostat of the list containing the name of Christian Esslinger is found on page 456 of Volume II of "Pennsylvania German Pioneers" by Strassburger and Hinke. A photostat of the list containing the name of Hans Jerg (John George) Esslinger is found on page 488 of the same publication.)

These two men were of German stock from the Palatinate and, of course, came over a number of years prior to the Revolutionary War. It is thus established that these two men were not Hessians. Furthermore, the name of Esslinger does not appear at all among the names of the Hessian Mercenaries who settled in this country. Further the name of Esslinger does not appear in further records that we can locate of settlers between the dates of 1749 and 1750 and 1800, at approximately which date the factual history of the Esslingers begins.

In examining the records of land ownership, wills, etc., we find the name of John George Esslinger and John Esslinger occurring more or less frequently as grantees of tracts of land in southeastern Pennsylvania in approximately the years from 1772 to 1816. Our conclusion from this is that Hans Jerg (John George) Esslinger settled in southeastern Pennsylvania and that these grantees were his children or his grandchildren. Furthermore, there are at present families by the name of Esslinger who make their home in this section of Pennsylvania.

On looking for records of the activities of Christian Esslinger who landed at Philadelphia in 1749, we find no further entries whatever in the Pennsylvania records, nor have we been able to find any in certain county records of the State of Virginia, which counties have contained a number of residents of German ancestry. But we do find the name of Christian among the children of an Andrew Esslinger who died in Tennessee in 1824 and the name also occurs among other Esslingers. We, therefore, feel justified in drawing the conclusion that Christian Esslinger did not tarry long in Pennsylvania but probably made his way down through Virginia and either he or his descendants gradually worked their way into the eastern portion of Tennessee near the headwaters of the Tennessee River. There we find Andrew Esslinger (First) and we believe him to be the son or possibly the grandson of Christian Esslinger who landed in Philadelphia from the Province of Wirttemberg in Germany on September 19, 1749.—Above contributed by Russell J. Esslinger of Reading, Pennsylvania.

Whatever may have been the occupation and moves of Christian Esslinger, everything indicates that he went south from Pennsylvania and became a citizen of Virginia. Whether he served in the War of 1776 or not, we have failed to ascertain from the records, and admit that our time has been rather limited for an extensive search of the records in the States of Virginia and Tennessee.

We do know however, that several settlements were made in Virginia, composed of steady, worthy German farmers and artisans. It is probable that Andrew the First, was a son of said Christian Esslinger and somewhere

ROBERT WRIGHT

On the concrete walk on the north side of the Court House yard in Huntsville, Alabama, is a monument, upon the north side of which is a bronze plaque upon which the ladies of the DAR have had inscribed the names of the various soldiers of the American Revolution, who are known to be buried in Madison County, Alabama. Among these names appears the name of Robert Wright, the man who was the father of Elizabeth Esslinger, who is also buried in Madison County, Alabama, and is the mother of the generations of Esslingers and their descendants, whose names we seek to give in this booklet.

Robert Wright was born and lived in Amhurst County, Virginia, until he entered the Virginia State Militia, subsequently inducted into the patriot army of the war of 1776. The war of the American Revolution.

In the year 1813 Robert Wright entered or purchased 160 acres of land near Flint River, upon which he lived until his death on the 24th day of March, 1847.

Following his death this obituary was published in the Huntsville Democrat and largely copied by various newspapers. Extracts from various newspapers in Alabama Records, Volume 35, in Washington, D.C., shows the death notice of Robert Wright: "Departed this life on the 24th instant March (1847) Robert Wright, Senior, a patriot of the Revolution, aged 85 years and seventeen days, native of Amhurst County, Virginia. Was at the siege of York, and assisted in the capture of Cornwallis, emigrated to Madison County, Alabama, in 1808 where he continued to reside until the day of his death, greatly esteemed and beloved by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Southern Advocate and Richmond Enquirer copy."

Kathleen Paul Jones, an expert genealogist, secured the above items from the manuscript volumes of Alabama Records, which are in the DAR Library in Washington, D.C., having been copied from the original newspapers in old files by herself and her sister-in-law, Pauline Jones Gandrud.

FROM TENNESSEE

The records of Dandridge, Tennessee show that the property of him we term Andrew the Second, was sold at public outcry, late in 1937 as shown upon the preceding page. His widow, Elizabeth Esslinger and her sons, Robert and William, (called Bob and Bill) having purchased such articles as they desired, evidently at a price less than that required of any other bidder, having previously arranged the proper barge, or bulwark flatboat, soon departed from Dandridge, down the French Broad river, and on down the Tennessee river to their future home in Alabama. This was in keeping with the advice of her father, Robert Wright, her brother William Wright. Her oldest son, Andrew Jackson Esslinger, who for some time had lived in Madison County, Alabama, with his grandfather, Robert Wright and his uncle, William Wright also advised her to come.

Without doubt their preparations were already made before the sale, so that as soon as the widow's share and the articles purchased at the sale, could be delivered to them, the fall season being almost over, they embarked early one Sunday morning on the trip down the river. Later in the year ice would be forming on the upper branches of the river and upon that account, the trip could not be delayed.

Whether Mother Elizabeth owned the barge or not, the record does not disclose, yet it was of the type, in common use in those pioneer days. It must have been at least thirty feet in length and the central part of the barge well covered over with a good wooden roof. The prow of the boat was left uncovered for a look-out, or pilot, who had charge of two long poles, one of which was tipped with an iron point and hook, a masterpiece of the local blacksmith. These poles were used for moving the boat where the current did not carry, or to fend off floating logs, or to push away from dangerous banks.

The rear of the boat was uncovered and here stood the man who managed the steering oar. The steering oar was a long lever, or stout pole, to which a wide board had been attached by wooden pins. About midway the lever was fastened to the barge by a swivel (also made by the blacksmith), the up end being smooth for handling, and the board extending deep into the water. By this the course of the barge could be gradually changed in a current, with or without the aid of the poles.

Rains and winds had to be considered and her household goods carefully loaded, or packed under the shelter.

This was after such voyages down the river were prohibited by the embargo of Draging Canoe, and other chiefs of the Chickasaw and Cherokee tribes. The trading post at Ross' landing, was now called Chattanooga. At Ross' landing a guide was usually engaged by the boatmen for a passage through the "Suck," The "Boiling Pot, the "Skillet" and the "Frying Pan." All combined, often called "The Suck." This was where the Tennessee River cut through the Cumberland mountains to what was the Indian town called "Nickajack," and the beginning of the broad lands of the Tennessee Valley in Alabama. Her big boys were deemed ample boatmen to manage the barge down the rivers, except perhaps through the dangerous passages below Chattanooga generally called the "Suck." At Chattanooga a guide was secured to conduct the voyagers through the perils of "the Suck." This guide would leave the boat at Nickajack (near Nickajack Cave, Tennessee) and find his way on foot, back to Ross' landing, by the old Indian trail, which skirted the River and the north end of Look-out Mountain. The writer has been told that their heavy boat became involved in the whirlpool, at night, and that they had the usual experience of passing the same objects which they thought to be duplicated, as they appeared to be, on the bank of the river, more than once, as they drifted with the current. The story of their mother's experience, even with a guide, was told the writer, when quite a lad, about the year 1877, as I rec-

the clearing."

The visitor explained that he did not need any extra furs at this time, but was sadly needing some Sweetening. "Have you any beef?" Asked our voyagers. "We have no beef but we have some fine venison up at my house. Last week I shot a fine spiked buck in my back new ground. I would be glad to trade half of this buck to you for some molasses if you have it." The voyagers remembered that they had a barrel well filled with excellent molasses in good condition; so they soon made a trade with Mr. Larkin for half of his buck, giving him in return, eight gallons of splendid molasses. With this transaction closed, Mr. Larkin bid them good bye with wishes for a successful trip down the river.

At Pine Island, they stopped to secure some fuel, then continued the voyage on down by Gunter's Landing. This seemed to be a busy settlement at this time, barges and canoes were much in evidence and it seemed many Indians were gathered in groups. Subsequently they learned that this was part of the exodus of the Cherokees from this section of Alabama to their western territory, under the iron clad orders of President Andrew Jackson, and Millard Fillmore, who succeeded him as President.

Passing below Guntersville where the river was wide and gravel bars were numerous, much help to the progress of the barge was rendered by the big boys with their poles.

About six miles down the river they came to the bluff on the north side called Honeycomb Bluff. From these successions of caverns from the water, up to a considerable height, the bluffs were named and from them the creek known as Honeycomb Creek, with its valley, and the Little Honeycomb Creek and valley just north of the river. Between two cliffs full of these caverns, with their echoes and honeycomb-like formation, a valley came down the river. Here is where Andrew Jackson and his army crossed the river on their way to defeat the Seminoles and later the English at New Orleans, in 1812. Here the river was deep and quiet. On the south the bank was sandy and easily accessible, but on the north the river was approached down a steep hill. In later years, from 1876 to 1915, the writer was thoroughly familiar with this part of the Tennessee River as he was born on the Fennell Plantation, at his grandmother's, just south of this crossing, or ferry, later known as Deposit. This was just about four miles north of the town of Warrenton.

At this point in the year 1864, a small battle was fought exactly at this crossing, between Union soldiers on the north and Confederate soldiers on the south. At this time all territory north of the Tennessee river was occupied and held by the Federal troops, but all south of the Tennessee river was in the Southern lines. The names of the commanders in charge, have escaped me. The Federal troops erected a barricade of logs, near the river, but the Confederate troops being where the soil was more easily handled, threw up an earthen embankment, and from these shelters each side fired vigorously at the other. One man was killed on the Confederate side. In my boyhood days, it appeared most wonderful to hear the echoes as the steam-boats urged by large engines and large stern-wheel paddles, came chugging up the river.

At first the echo would resound down to the left, as we stood on the south side of the river, and could hear the echo from the caves and bluffs on the north side. As the boats progressed the echo would grow further and further up the river, and finally when the boat was near, with its towering smokestacks and wonderful loads of cotton, goods, animals and merchandise of various kinds, and people, the echo would be far up to the right; and all was excitement as the boat landed. One of these boats was the "Robert R. Anderson", another the "Chattanooga." A small boat was the "Ida." One of the most modern was the "Guntersville" later the tug "Huntsville" with its stern wheel and strong engines, pushed the barges from Hobbs Island to Guntersville, joining the two parts of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad, with all the splendor of the noises, echoes and hissing of steam, incidental to all boats. This writer knew the captains of some of these boats. One was Captain Samuels of Guntersville and another was Captain James R. Johnson of New Hope, which was called Vienna, before the Civil War. It is said that after the destruction of the town by the Federal soldiers; after the war was ended, the new town was named, and expressed a "new hope."

(Incidentally, Captain James R. Johnson, in a Democratic convention, for Madison County, Alabama, put in nomination for Tax Collector of Madison County, Andrew J. Esslinger, who was nominated and elected, serving four years from 1892 to 1896, as Tax Collector of Madison County. He was the father of this writer.)

At Deposit a messenger was secured to send by horseback, over the Jackson Trail, to the home of William Wright, the brother of grandmother Elizabeth, and to her son, Jack Esslinger, the information that their barge would soon be in the Paint Rock River, and for them to send to Vienna such transportation as they saw fit, to bring them up into the Little Cove.

* Within a few hours down the river appeared the face of the wonderful cliff known as the Painted Rock. It is so located that its face shows many miles up the river. From this beautiful rock, the river takes its name and the valley, drained by it, known as the beautiful Paint Rock Valley. The railroad town located on the river, is also called Paint Rock, in Jackson County, Alabama.

Just past this bluff the mouth of Paint Rock River reaches the Tennessee. Into this our barge was steered and then some work with hooks and poles to slowly work the heavy barge up the Paint Rock River, to a suitable landing on the Jackson Trail near Vienna just east or southeast of what is now New Hope. Here they rested until the teams from up the valley came with one large ox wagon and a carry-all for the women, and a wagon pulled by two strong mules, and men enough to load all the goods onto the wagon. Then began their long day's journey back up the valley over the well marked military and Indian road, called Jackson's Trail.

After the first mile of soft ground, the traveling was fairly good, until the mountain gap called Cedar Ridge, was reached. Here the road was extremely rough and the drivers had to proceed with undue care and very slowly. Further on they came to what was subsequently named the Cave Spring. A space between a large mountain and a small mountain that is a depression, rather than a hill like Cedar Ridge. Between these mountains there is a level sunken area of a few acres over which a creek flows, right out of one cave and across the bottom of the depression and into another cave, estimated at about one thousand feet. The water is as pure and as sweet as any water in the County of Madison, with all of its wonderful and sweet springs. Once under the little mountain it continues about two miles, then comes out at what is called Hinds Spring and comprises one of the main feeders of Goose Creek. Goose Creek, across which our people went also, in their wagons, has its origin in what is called the Horse Cove of Keel's Mountain, which is a part of the Big Cove lying southeast of Huntsville. This name, Horse Cove, was given to this cove in the mountains, because here the settlers could turn out their horses and cattle for grazing and know that it would not be easy for the Indians to stampede them out over the mountains, while they themselves, guarded the mouth of the Cove. Just south of this cove and at the Cave Springs mentioned above, a skirmish was also fought during the Civil War and a fine young man from one of the homes near Hurricane Creek, was killed. With his comrades they met a squad of Federal soldiers returning from a raid near Vienna. They fought from behind fences and rocks. Mr. Chambers, who was killed, was lying behind a rock and he would raise up and shoot over it, so once as he raised, a minnie ball struck his head and killed him.

ELIZABETH'S CHILDREN

By the above affidavit, dated October 1st, 1947, made by Mills J. Potts, an aged first cousin of William Wirght Esslinger, my grandfather, it appears that the children of our ancestress, Elizabeth Wright Esslinger, were as follows, naming them in succession, eldest first, to-wit:

Andrew J. Esslinger, Polly Esslinger, (Mary), Sarah (Sally) Esslinger, William Wright Esslinger, Elizabeth Bowman Esslinger, Robert Esslinger, Thomas S. Esslinger and James Esslinger. This constitutes her family as I have been told and understood it to be, so my wish is to confirm the naming set out in the said affidavit. I knew of the two aunts of my father while they still lived at their old home in the Little Cove; we planned to go to see them, but waited too late. Aunt Mary (Polly) and Aunt Sarah (Sally) passed on and were interred where their mother and grand parents, and numerous other relatives were buried in the Jenkins Cemetery, near Beech Grove Church.

Whether Uncle James Esslinger, the young brother, ever married or not, I am not certain; but he died in Burleson County, Texas, at the home of a Mr. McGaha. Having no children, his heirs were here. Some effort was made to see about the little farm he had entered, but it appeared that it was too late, that our claims as heirs had been barred by the statute of limitations of Texas. It seems Mr. McGaha sold off the land in two parcels. That part of the County has been cut off and is now Lee County, the land being near McDade, Texas. That land had no great value. The writer saw it in the year 1891.

ANDREW J. ESSLINGER

Andrew Jackson Esslinger b. 1804. Died 1895 was the eldest son of Elizabeth Esslinger and Andrew Esslinger of Jefferson Co., Tennessee. It is legendary that he whom we call Uncle Jack came to Madison County before the rest of his mother's family arrived.

He lived with his uncle, William Wright, who was a brother of his mother, and also a son of Robert Wright a veteran of the Revolutionary War and Keziah Bibb. His uncle owned some good farms and had some slaves. Uncle Jack was also engaged in farming and was a foreman and overseer for his Uncle. In 1841 after his mother had moved to Alabama he was married to Sarah C. Hunt about the 4th day of March, 1841, in Madison County, Ala. She was a niece of Mrs. Levi Hinds, and was a neice of John Hunt, a wealthy lumberman and land owner of South Alabama, South Louisiana and Northwest Florida. It seems that he left few heirs, and the orphan neice, Sarah C. Hunt, inherited a one-fourth interest in his property. The proceeds of her inheritance was invested in slaves and lands in Madison, Co., Ala., just prior to the War between the States. Much of this property was destroyed and lost during the War, but a fine farm upon Whitesburg Road was left. Some of the slaves owned by Uncle Jack lived in and around Huntsville. I knew Uncle Pleas Esslinger, a colored carpenter, who before the war was Uncle Jack's coachman. Others from his farm took the name of Ewing and Horton being the names of the farms upon which they had been born.

To Andrew Jackson Esslinger and Sarah Hunt were born: Levi W., James Thomas, John Washington, Sallie, Elizabeth J., Ogden, and Huldah.

The writer knew James Thomas Esslinger well, and admired him very much as a skilled mechanic. His wife, Mary DeBow, of the old DeBow family whose burial ground is just west of Keel's Mountain, about 4 miles south of Gurley near the Deposit road.

James T. Esslinger and his family lived for a while in Huntsville. They had several children, the eldest of whom was Daisy, who went to Pilot Point, Texas, and lived several years. Her family, if any, reside in Texas. Her husband was a Mr. Veasey.

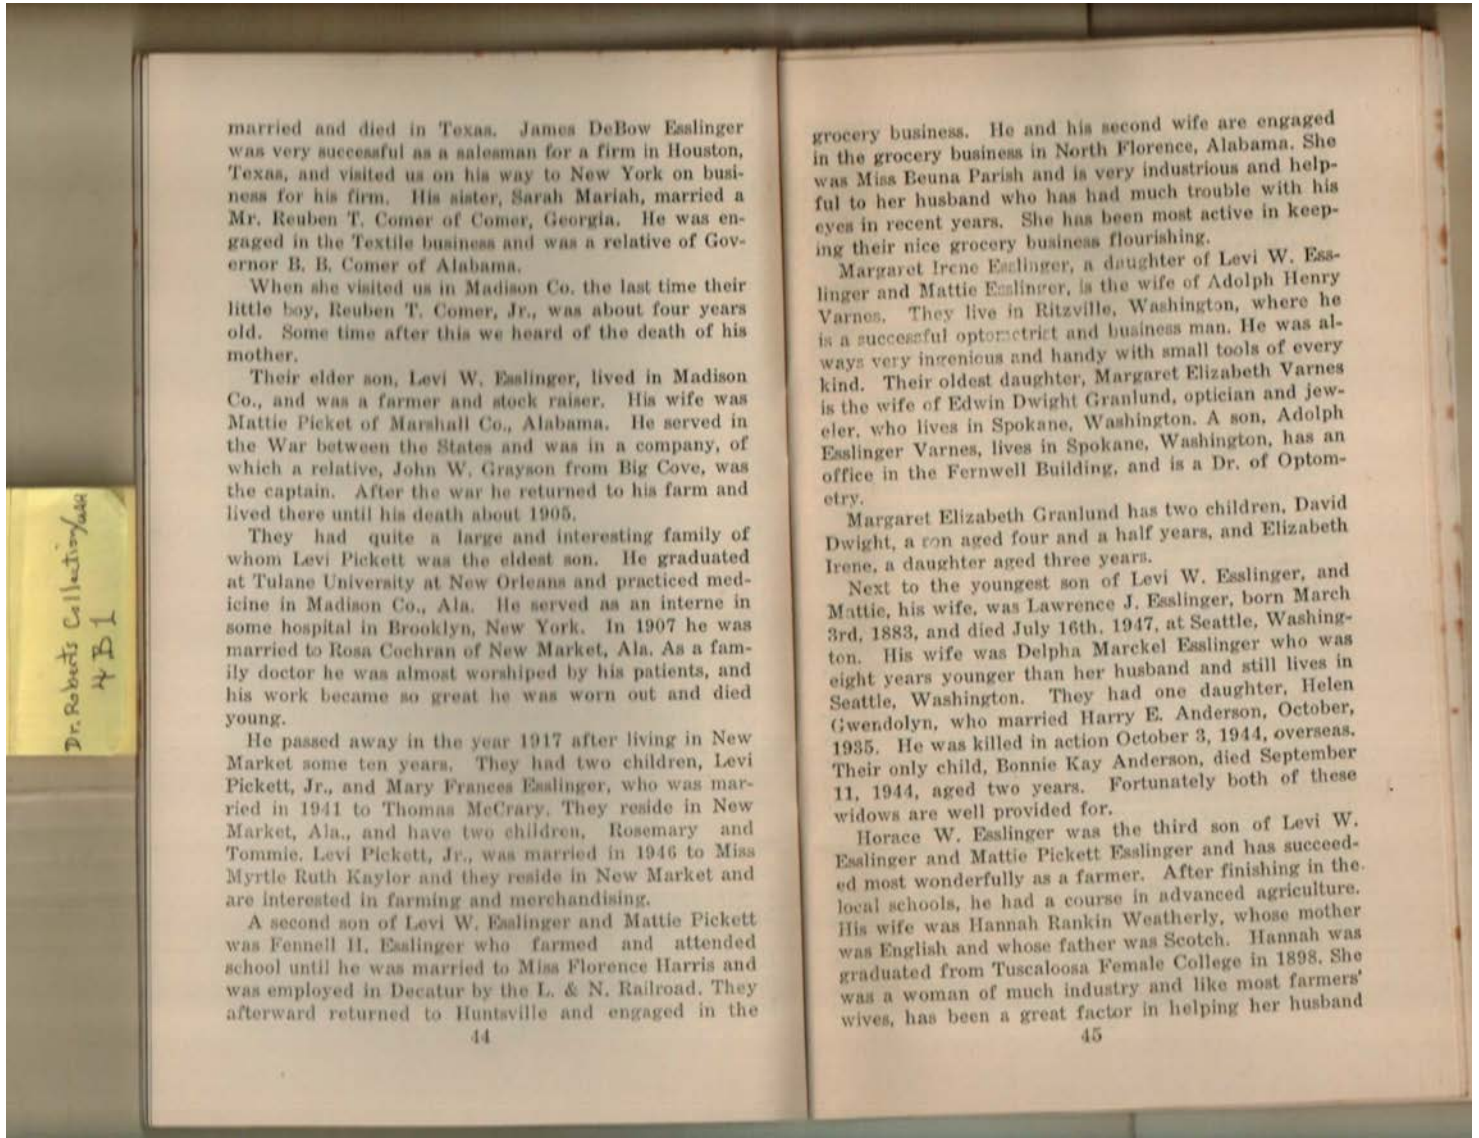

His daughter, Emma, with her brother James DeBow Esslinger, and her sister, Sarah Mariah Esslinger lived in Huntsville, Ala., and were intimate friends and neighbors of our family many years ago. Emma was never

H. LeRoy Campbell, Ernest G. Campbell, Sr., Katherine P. Campbell Hazelwood, are children residing in Chattanooga, while Robert Lee Campbell, resides in Knoxville, Tenn., and Sarah Mae Campbell Yarbrough resides in Orlando, Florida.

Grand children living in Knoxville are, Robert E. Campbell, Jr., James L. Campbell, Joseph W. Campbell, Michael Campbell and Daniel Andrew Campbell.

William A. Campbell has the following grand children living in Chattanooga, Tenn.: Norma Jean Campbell, Loyd C. Campbell, Carlton D. Campbell, Carol A. Campbell, Ernest G. Campbell, Jr., Patricia S. Campbell and William Barbee Hazelwood; other grand children being Barbara Sue Campbell, of Miami, Florida; Kitty L. Osborn, and Marjorie Yarbrough, of Orlando, Fla.

Mamie Campbell became the wife of G. V. Dewey of 1417 Highland Park and Chattanooga, and they have the following descendants: Velma Lee Dewey, wife of J. J. Duncan, of Chattanooga, who has the following children: Mary Jane Duncan, Guy C. Duncan, Darlus Dean Duncan, now the wife of W. D. Ellis; Florence May Dewey, now Mrs. R. M. Hennessee, of Long Beach, California, where their son Ben Lee Hennessee also lives, also John C. Dewey of Highland Park Ave., and Fred J. Dewey, Bailey Ave., Chattanooga. Mamie Campbell Dewey has some children of a former marriage to Robert Honey, W. F. Honey, Bass Road, Chattanooga; with his two children, Bill Honey and Marylyn Honey; also Sarah Honey Fulmer, wife of Earl Fulmer, and their fine son, all on S. Bush, Chattanooga.

WILLIAM WRIGHT ESSLINGER

William W. Esslinger was the second son of our ancestor, Elizabeth Esslinger. In 1843, he was married to Martha Neal, who was the daughter of Eleanor Harrison Neal and John Neal. The father of Martha Neal was a relative of William Henry Harrison, one of the presidents of the United States. A cousin, Dr. Harrison, was a prominent citizen of east Madison, about 1868.

William W. Esslinger and his wife Martha, lived all their married lives, near Berkeley, Alabama. Said William Wright Esslinger purchased land near the farming lands owned by his maternal uncle, William Wright, for whom he was named. Besides being a fine farmer Mr. Bill Esslinger, as he was called, was a carpenter of some ability and had what the writer considered, a wonderful lot of tools, such as chisels, augers, planes that made grooves and planes that made a tongue to fit the groove so that by hand, these men contrived to make the best of floors, and with adz and broadax, turned the long knot-free logs, into beautiful pieces of building timber.

Mrs. Martha Esslinger, his wife, was equally industrious, and a good manager. Both of them were devout Christians and their home was always open to the Circuit Riders, Presiding Elders of the Methodist Church, in fact, to all ministers.

It was in their home that every night, a chapter was read by grandfather, and a prayer said by him, or a visitor. Some day it is possible our people will resort again to family prayers. Of their large family, Andrew Jackson Esslinger was the eldest. The War between the States came at an unfortunate time for him, in that the year's schooling, for which he had been waiting, had to be abandoned, so that he could join the Volunteers and enter the war for the protection of States' Rights. The right to secede from the Union seemed to be one of the moving forces which led to the bloody war. His service in the Army was curtailed on account of illness. He went into the service in a company under Captain LeRoy M. Peevy. After being severely ill, at home, he became a member of Company "K", under Captain Thomas J. Taylor, of the Fourth Alabama Volunteers. His company was captured at Port Hudson, Louisiana, after a long siege, and the men were paroled home, except officers sent north to prison. About this time, the work of the Southern people was with loom and shoe making tools and utensils, most wonderful of which helped them to make many of their own clothes; the product of the hand-made looms which was wonderful wearing cloth, and most comfortable in the winter. The hardships of on gunboats, were fired at the house, but none happened to burn the house, one half mile south of the river. One of these round bombs, properly emptied, was given my mother, and for years was in our front yard, being used part of the time as a weight to hold a front gate shut.

Her brother, Dr. William Fennell, was graduated from a Medical College in Washington, joined 9th Alabama Infantry and was sent to Virginia, where he became field surgeon of the regiment, as I am told with some rank, possibly Captain. In the great battle of Gaines' Mills, he led a charge, in the face of cannon and musket fire to capture a battery of fourteen guns, with the enemy driven into the field beyond.

In Pollard's Lost Cause, page 287, the charge is given in part, thus:

"With fierce grandeur the charge swept on. On the right the troops pressed steadily forward, unchecked by the terrific fire from the triple lines of infantry upon the hill, and the cannon on both sides of the river, which burst upon them as they emerged on the plain."

It was like the "Charge of the Light Brigade":

"Cannon to the right of them,
Cannon to the left of them,
Volley'd and thunder'd,
* * * * *

Into the Jaws of Death,
Rode the Six Hundred."

Many of the officers of the regiment had been shot down (Pollard's Lost Cause, page 288 and foot-notes), but the brave Confederates fought on. Captain Will Fennell, seeing the scarcity of officers, shouted "Company, Charge", "Follow Me," and led that gallant charge up and over that line of death dealing intrenchments on the crest of the hill, capturing every cannon, destroying all resistance, giving to the South a great victory, but Captain William Fennell, leading the charge fell, seriously wounded, but lived to fight again. His wounds disqualified him for Infantry service, so upon recovery he raised a company for Cavalry service and was attached to Russell's 4th Alabama Cavalry, Wheeler's Division.

Later in the war, Captain Fennell, with his brother, Wattie Fennell, was captured and sent to Johnson's Island, where he was many months without hearing from his people at home.

After the War, he lived in Marshall County, practicing Medicine and farming; then, was induced to join a cousin John Fennell, a druggist in business at Holly Springs, Mississippi, and practice medicine in that community. His success was remarkable. Then, in the year 1878, the dreaded yellow fever epidemic, with its horrors and frenzied effect upon the people, scourged Holly Spring and other towns, many fled. Dr. Fennell and the devoted druggist could have fled to safety, but they stayed with the suffering people and helped them to the bitter end. Uncle William and Cousin John both contracted yellow fever and died.

In the Episcopal Church in Holly Springs, Miss., I was told by a lady from Huntsville, the mother-in-law of its rector, some ten years ago, that a beautiful window is dedicated to the Memory of Dr. William Fennell, who gave his life to help his people.

Another brother of Mother "Cassie Fennell" Esslinger was Dr. I. Wattie Fennell, who was attending the same Medical College in the City of Washington, before his final graduation; when a sharp battle occurred; so his first surgical practice was dressing the wounds of the enemy.

Dr. Wattie Fennell enlisted in the 42nd, Tennessee Infantry, but in July of that year, at Baker's Creek in Mississippi, he was captured by the Federals and started North on the "Star of the West", but before reaching Memphis, he jumped overboard into the Mississippi River and swam to the Southern shore. He re-entered service of the South and was again captured and being official, was sent to languish in Camp Douglass, in Chicago. Reading of the great fire in Chicago, in 1871, memories of his suffering caused him to show he felt like it was just a part of retaliation, for which he felt no to which office he was elected in 1892 and served four years. At that State election, Judge Thomas J. Taylor, was again re-elected Judge of Probate Court, but passed away before his term had expired. Dr. Francisco Rice, was appointed by the Governor to be such Judge, but he also passed away before the term was filled. Judge S. M. Stewart filled out the remainder of the term as Judge. Was elected again, then as I remember re-nominated for another term without opposition.

After being near "Shiloh" on the Allison Farm, a few years, my parents bought a farm of 215 acres, being sold as the farm belonging to the estate of Thomas A. Wright, deceased. My impression is that one of the Wrights had married a Miss Peevey, a sister of Capt. LeRoy M. Peevey, residents of West Clinton Street in Huntsville. One of his sisters, a Mrs. Martin from Mooresville, visited this house while we lived there, about sixty years ago, and told us she had been married in a certain room there FIFTY years before that date; this indicating that the main building is almost or quite and hundred and fifty years old. When my parents bought the place, two additions had been made to the originally grand one and one-half story log house; one addition of logs, and the other and latest a frame and plaster job, making one cool room, (winter and summer). The first addition had been covered with hand made knot-less cedar shingles, which I helped re-place with hand-made poplar shingles, drawn on the ground by Mr. Volney Glass, about fifty years later, the year that Bill Jack's uncle B. F. (Dock) Collier got married to Miss Toleta Brazelton.

Here, near old Berkley (at Norment's) and new Berkley, at Esslinger's Store, and Norment's New Store, our family was reared, there being only three little boys at the time. The house had been occupied the years before by father of Mr. Ike Cobb, whose mother was "Aunt Lou Medlin", as I recollect, not verified.

Here our family was reared. There were six boys and one daughter, the youngest of the seven. By name they were William Francis (ye scribe), James Houston, Earnest Alva, Andrew Watkins (Andrew the 7th), Wade Hampton and Arthur Graham Esslinger. The baby girl was Martha Matilda Esslinger, named Martha for Grand Ma, Martha Harrison Neel, upon one side and Matilda Allison Fennell, upon the other; Neel and Harrison English and Scotch; while Allison was Irish (Grand Ma, Matilda was born in Dublin, Ireland) Fennell, French, from the family of that name in Virginia, relatives of Captain John P. Fennell, of that date.

After some attendance at Country Schools, she, in the care of her two aunts, Bell F. Neill and Mary J. Graham, attended a Good School in Nashville. Afterward she chose to study the mercantile business, in which she became very successful. This business requiring her to be in Helena, Ark., there she met Mr. Marion D. Prewett, to whom she was married and they continued to reside in Helena. Mr. Prewett was a well known stock dealer, farmer and later merchant. A disastrous fire, at his suburban store, caused them serious loss. They disposed of their pretty cottage and still lived in Helena.

Their only child, a son, Marion D. Prewett, Jr., was a good student, graduated from the local schools and became a commercial artist of much promise at Lord's Emporium, in the City of New York. His future seemed bright, even a brilliant future seemed to open before him, but, alas! the usual auto accident caused his death, he being struck by a taxi driver while crossing a street in a heavy fog and rainstorm, in that city.

After the death of her son and later of her husband Mr. Prewett, Mattie Matilda returned to Huntsville, Ala. Here she met Mr. James T. Uptain, an energetic Post Office employee, later a farmer and shoe dealer, well known as a high-toned Christian gentleman and they were married in Huntsville, Alabama, where they now reside in a well kept brick house of their own.

The eldest son was William Francis Esslinger, (born January 9th, 1868) who was, on the 14th day of December 1899 married to Blanche Chandler Russell at the home of her father, I. P. Russell, Sr., who was an extensive farmer, and breeder and trainer of fine harness horses, in Jackson County, Ala., near Stevenson. She was a singer of some note, and taught music after being graduated from Centenary College, Athens, Tenn., and attending Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, Maryland. Her mother was Martha Daniel McCullough wed to Mr. Russell at her home, The Natural Bridge House, Lookout Mountain, Tennessee.

Both W. F. Esslinger and his wife are living. He is engaged in the practice of law in Huntsville, Ala., where he was admitted to the bar on November 25th, 1895, and actively entered the practice January 1st, 1897. In term of 1888-89 he attended National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio.

At this term, Cordell Hull, of Willow Grove, Tenn., and his brother, Orestus Hull, attended the University, in Lebanon, Ohio, their first experience off at school. Cordell was taking his first course in law, but he was interested in the Tariff Question, and in my estimation became one of the best authorities on Tariffs and international agreements in the United States. We had rooms on the second floor of Enstian 15, our old dormitory.

In a letter to Mr. Hull, Secretary of State, I inquired of him, if he remembered the incident, when in retaliation for some trick upon me, I had used his cane squirt gun to drench him with water as he went down the steps. His reply, as follows:

September 25, 1933.

"Dear Mr. Esslinger: I much appreciate your cordial and interesting letter of the 20th instant. . . . I very well recall our agreeable association. I am much interested in your reminiscences, which I remember to be absolutely correct. Some of these days, I hope to see something of you. Again my thanks, and best regards.

Sincerely yours,
Cordell Hull."

now in home for disabled veterans, after serving through World War II.

CONCLUSION

At the close of this List of Esslingers, I make a brief summary of the callings listed in part:

First, there are many, many farmers, which was the calling of nearly all the elder men descended from Mother Elizabeth Wright Esslinger, whose descendants we try to record here.

The Doctors have been Levi Pickett Esslinger, Wade Hampton Esslinger, Dr. Josh Esslinger, Dr. William Richardson, still in practice, and a home doctor, unofficial, but effective, Mrs. Catherine M. Fennell Esslinger.

Of her, we may say in lines of another:

"She sowed Sympathy and reaped friendship,
She planted kindness and gathered love."

Arthur G. Esslinger, deceased, of Fairfield; Russell J. Esslinger, of Reading, Pa., and William Francis Esslinger of Miami Beach, Fla., were our three greatest lawyers, all three of whom were graduated from the University of Alabama, with a degree of LL.B. but your historian, has been in the active practice of law in Huntsville since the first day of January, 1897, 53 years, and claims to be the oldest member of the local bar in active practice.

Louis Wesley Drake is a Presbyterian minister, in the State of Missouri.

The local preachers are A. W. Esslinger, of Cameron, Texas, and Ezell Esslinger, of Lincoln, and Huntsville, both Methodist, and Rev. William A. Esslinger, of Huntsville Park, a Baptist minister.

Many of those named have entered into the manufacturing business, while some have made good as electrical and radio experts.

And, last I toss a boquet to all the girls and boys who have entered into the various schools of this and other counties, as teachers; but, also, again commend the brave farmers who knew best and sent them to school, even to college, so they could prepare for the work, and advance themselves.

Should any of my readers suggest, that I have been too extravagant in my praise of our farming people and ancestors, let me say it is a matter of Taste. The old expression "De gustibus non est disputandum" means there is no disputing about taste, so I claim the right, and express my real feelings, hoping it may not offend you.

Your National Heritage is the Blood of the English Puritan, of the optimistic French Cavalier, the acumen and caution of the Scotch, the witty and impulsive Irish, and the sturdy, efficient German, to constitute noble citizens of America.

And, now, on the 1st day of May, 1950, at the age of 82, I say to you all not Fare Well, but Good Luck; and may all of you make the future, your future and achievements worthy of our pioneer ancestors.

W. F. ESSLINGER,
(Cousin Frank)
Family Historian.
