9. Zeidler-McCrary House. c. 1826. High Street. Home of Mr. & Mrs. George McCrary, Jr. The house is basically ~~Georgian~~ style as relates to the heavy supporting structures. All outside siding, corner posts and braces are poplar. Studs are pine and cherry. The two story, two room frame of the N.E. corner of the house was built in 1826 and had an inside stairway. The builder and original occupants are unknown. The original outside kitchen and smokehouse are in excellent condition.

In 1840, Sophia and Bob Peebles added to the frame across the front of the house. All of the present outside trim was added at this time.

In the 1860's, Mrs. Peebles' schoolhouse, which was in the S.W. corner of the yard, was brought up and added on to the back of the house. This schoolhouse was built about the same time as the Mooresville Church of Christ and by the same carpenter. The moldings are the same in each building. Mrs. Peebles also taught Sunday School at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Mooresville.

In 1885, Andrew John Zeidler (great-grandfather of present occupants) bought this house from the Peebles' grandson, also named Bob Peebles.

In the late 1890's, Mrs. A. J. Zeidler added the front porch and north and south porches.

In 1917, Henry B. Zeidler, Mr. A. J. Zeidler's son, and his wife, Josephine Cortner Zeidler made additional changes, adding a modern kitchen and baths.

In 1972, H. B. Zeidler's grandson, George McCrary, Jr., remodeled the kitchen into a den and added another kitchen to the north. This year, the McCrary's are restoring the home, removing all plaster and wood lathes and insulating and adding sheetrock and placing all mold and trim back as it originally was. The fireplaces are being restored to woodburning, using old, handmade brick. The pine floors are being replaced with 12 inch wide and 2 inch thick heart pine boards which were the original floor joists in the old Decatur Daily building.
