

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

May 14, 1957

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS

FRED G. MUSICK

Senator Karl Mundt
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Karl:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. He is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator Karl Mundt

-2-

May 14, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RLJ:al

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS

FRED G. MUSICK

May 14, 1957

Senator Estes Kefauver
Senate House Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Estes:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Colonel Charles Zimmer and Lieutenant Lewis Cole in the defense of Colonel John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Colonel Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Colonel Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Colonel Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Colonel Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. He is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator Estes Kefauver

-2-

May 14, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

REJ:ai

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

May 14, 1957

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS
FRED G. MUSICK

Senator Everett Dirksen
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Ev:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Charles Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. He is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator Everett Dirksen

-2-

May 14, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS
FRED G. MUSICK

May 14, 1957

Governor Howard Pyle
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Governor:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. <sup>fact</sup> He is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Governor Howard Pyle

-2-

May 14, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson. We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS
FRED G. MUSICK

May 14, 1957

Congressman Howard H. Baker
House Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Howard:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Charles Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. He is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Congressman Howard H. Baker

-2-

May 14, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS
BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS

FRED G. MUSICK

May 15, 1957

Senator Stuart Symington
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Stu:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Charles Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court-martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. That he is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator Stuart Symington

-2-

May 15, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS

FRED G. MUSICK

May 15, 1957

Senator Charles Potter
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Charlie:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court-martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. That he is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator Charles Potter

-2-

May 15, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS

FRED G. MUSICK

May 15, 1957

Senator Styles Bridges
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator Bridges:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Charles Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court-martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. That he is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator Styles Bridges

-2-

May 15, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS

FRED G. MUSICK

May 15, 1957

Senator Thruston Morton
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Thruston:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Charles Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court-martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. That he is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator Thruston Morton

-2-

May 15, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

P.S. You will remember that Col. Nickerson is a native of your Commonwealth of Kentucky, has many relatives and friends there, and such a disposition of his case would be highly pleasing to many Kentuckians.

LAW OFFICES
JENKINS & JENKINS

BANK OF KNOXVILLE BUILDING
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

RAY H. JENKINS
ERBY L. JENKINS
AUBREY JENKINS

FRED G. MUSICK

May 15, 1957

Senator John Sherman Cooper
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear John:

I am associated with Mr. Robert Bell, Col. Charles Zimmer and Lt. Lewis Cole in the defense of Col. John C. Nickerson, who is charged in a general court-martial proceeding with violating certain army security regulations, and who will be tried at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, on June 25.

The case has been rather widely publicized, and I assume you are somewhat familiar with it. In order to properly defend Col. Nickerson, it is going to be necessary that his attorneys be cleared for top secret and highly sensitive documents and information. This we have applied for, but thus far such clearance has not been granted.

Under the law, we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, are entitled to examine and introduce in court any highly secret material which might directly or indirectly bear on the issues involved. We feel that even though the courtroom may be cleared of everyone not officially connected with the case, a grave risk of such information becoming general knowledge will nevertheless be run if the case is actually tried.

Army procedure provides for what is known as non-judicial punishment in such cases as this, and we, as counsel for Col. Nickerson, and as American citizens, feel that if non-judicial punishment were administered, the tremendous risks of jeopardizing the welfare of the nation in the trial of this case would be obviated.

Col. Nickerson's efficiency reports covering his many years of service in the Army are of the highest order. That he is a loyal, patriotic and dedicated officer there can be no doubt. He is regarded as one of the most important figures at Redstone Arsenal in the development of guided

COPY

Senator John Sherman Cooper

-2-

May 15, 1957

missiles. Frankly, and in a moment of impulsiveness and in his zeal to develop an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile for the Army, he cut the red tape and may have in some particulars gone beyond the bounds of propriety, but his motives were the purest, and what he did resulted in no potential damage to the country whatsoever.

Could you, or would you in some way convey our thinking to the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Wilson? We feel very strongly that a real service to the country would be rendered if the Army would relax its position and pursue the course hereinabove mentioned.

With kindest personal regards to you always.

Cordially yours,

Ray H. Jenkins

RHJ:ai

P. S. You will remember that Col. Nickerson is a native of your Commonwealth of Kentucky, has many relatives and friends there, and such a disposition of his case would be highly pleasing to many Kentuckians.