

Her stories were very strange, inconsistent, character and disposition of the people as she spoke, and inconsistent with the relations that had existed between her and those of whom I inquired. I remember that she told me that the widow of Armistead Jones was at Mr. [unclear] the man was burned and that Mrs. Jones could not give the name of the man who was of the offensive smell. With regard to this murder Mrs. Hayle could not give the name of the man.

of stealing, which she wanted Mrs Toob to Mrs Mc Claid - of Mrs Mc Davids having her of stealing money, and suspecting her medicines from Dr Slane, of Mrs Mc Davids gave her bundle when she Mrs Hayle on a visit, she said that Dr Slane followed Col Taylor to whip her & that he was there she got up and would have whipped her if it not been prevented by Col Jos Taylor dard, neither did she know so she stated and to the boy Pleasant whom she also implicated, to my certain knowledge he had early ~~ten~~ years to Miss and had not come back at the time and ~~for~~ several years afterwards Miss of Mr. Tates and was frequently there and ~~about~~ negroes, and that any person standing ~~at~~ ~~the~~ ~~old~~ ~~Kitchen~~, and at that time there was a porch to the house which was ⁱⁿ the South Kitchen being on the North.
